FRIENDLY FOES.

Amid the smoke and carnage of the battlefield it is good to catch a glimpse of the sunshine when proceeds from goodwill and ready, active sympathy.

As the sublime can quickly shade off into the ridiculous, so kindness presses close upon enmity. A cheerful incident of the civil war is told in "Mission Ridge and Lookout Mountain."

The Third Ohio, under Straight's command, was en route for Richmond, prisoners of war.

One night they camped, worn, famished, with hearts heavy and homesick, near the place where a Confederate regiment, the Fifty-fourth Virginia, was stationed.

Many of the Southerners strolled over to the prison camp to see the sorry show of the poor sufferers.

They did not stay long. Back to their own camp they hurried, and soon returned with kettles of coffee, corn bread, bacon—the best they had and all they had.

Presently little fires began to twinkle in the prison camp, and the aroma of coffee rose like a fragrant cloud of thank offering.

Union guests and Confederate hosts mingled. The next morning the prisoners departed.

Now comes a happy sequel which well balances the affair. Later, when the prisoners were exchanged, the Third Ohio was encamped near Kelly's ferry, on the banks of the Tennessee.

On the day of the storming of Missionary Ridge, among the prisoners taken were numbered the Fifty-fourth Virginia.

Some of the Third Ohio were on duty at they ferry when the prison detachments arrived.

"What regiment is that?" they asked.

When told, they started on the run, shouting as they went:

"The Fifty-fourth Virginia's at the ferry!"

The dashed into their camp with the news. The place was astir instantly. Treasures of coffee, bacon, sugar, beef, preserved peaches, everything, were turned out and carried, double-quick, to the ferry. The circumstances were the same, with the difference that guests and hosts had changed places.

made enough money in Wall Street last week to buy a house and lot. "Did you buy it?" "Well, no; but I wish I had."—New York Herald.
